BAROSSA VALLEY

2000 ROSÉ

Rosé has enjoyed a comeback in Australia, with people from all over Australia enjoying this fantastic style of wine, which can be enjoyed with such a large variety of foods.

Although converting wine consumers to this style of wine has been effortless the Australian wine industry has taken a little longer to persuade. With six vintages of Rosé under our belt and being amongst the handful of wineries which produced a Rosé a few years ago, it is great to see other wineries now following in our footsteps.

The 2000 Rosé as with previous vintages is a blend of free-run Grenache, with smaller quantities of Shiraz and Cabernet Sauvignon added to the final blend to provide this wine with necessary backbone and structure.

The result is a wine, which is vibrantly fresh with spice, red cherry and raspberry aromas and flavours.
